COMMISSIONERS ORDER ELECTION

Voters of Rush County Will Decide
Wet and Dry Question on February 27.

DRYS WIN LEGAL BATTLES

Big Question Now is: Won't the Voting of Wayne County Wet
Cause Repeal of Bill?

The county commissioners who have been adjourning from day to day, awaiting the settlement of the legal controversy regarding the calling of a county option election, met today when they heard that the restraining order had been dissolved by Special Judge Rogers at New Castle, and ordered an election in Rush county to take place on Saturday, February 27. This was the shortest time possible to issue a call as the law requires twenty days' notice to be given.

Immediately following the ordering of the election, William O'Neil, through his attorneys, filed an answer, challenge and objection and same was promptly overruled by the court. The attorneys prayed for an appeal to the circuit court and this was granted. The election call will stand as ordered, unless Judge Sparks decides the O'Neil matter otherwise.

The air is blue with county option talk today. Both sides are putting forth their argument in every part of the city and not a few are becoming "riled up" on the subject. The victory for the wets in Wayne county is a bitter pill for the county option advocates and those far seeing ones, who are not biased and blind with prejudice, see in it a slump and blow to county option methods and the death knell to the movement where the wets are properly organized. The saddest blow of all, and one that strikes down deep in the hearts of the men who are honestly in favor of county option, is the fact that two of the many college students home of the many college students and faculty in attendance at Earlham college, and the other, that part of the city, where the very best homes are located and Richmond's representative citizens are domiciled, both of these voted wet. Wayne county voting wet will undoubtedly have a State-wide influence and will, in all probability result in repealing the county option law. Representative Ratliff, Republican, of Wayne county, who, along with a number of other prominent Republicans of the State favors repealing the law, can now consistently take that stand as a majority of his home people have declared by their ballots that they do not want county option. Ratliff was supposed to be the man that would cast the deciding vote in the lower house. In the Senate there are a number of Republican senators who do not look with favor on county option and will vote to repeal it, providing the Democratic plank is not offered for a substitute, that of township and ward local option.

In the meantime, the fight in Rush county will start today from the first tap of the gong. Before another week we will probably see the campaign under full steam and both sides having plenty of pressure to spare. An example of how bitter some men will become when they have strong convictions on a question was exemplified in a local barber shop today. One strong advocate of county option, on seeing the outcome in Wayne county, was up on his feet in a minute and "pawing" the air. He said:

"Well, what do you think of a good old Quaker community like Wayne doing a thing like that? They

NOT KILLED BY THE HEAT

Clover Seed Prospects Are Good,
Declare the Farmers.

Contradictory to the statements that have lately been made to the effect that the clover crop for the coming season was not very promising, several farmers were asked concerning the prospects and they report that they are very favorable. They state that the drought and scorching weather of last year did not burn the seed as was at first thought. The seed that was gathered was of the best quality in years; and all the clover hullers in the county threshed from 700 to 1000 bushels during the summer.

CITY SCHOOLS TO HONOR B. S. PARKER

All New Castle Will Pay Tribute to the Talents of Their Honored Poet.

HAS A SON LIVING HERE

The New Castle Courier has the following story regarding the father of Jet Parker, of the Knecht Clothing company of this city:

"Henry county's well known and beloved poet, Benjamin S. Parker, was born February 10, 1833, and will pass the 76th milestone of his life next Wednesday. It is proposed that the event shall be fittingly observed in the schools of New Castle and arrangements are in progress.

"The pupils of the high school and the various grades in all of the buildings will participate in the program to be rendered in the high school assembly room during the afternoon, and will embrace the principal address by Judge E. H. Bundy, recitations, readings from Mr. Parker's books, music and short addresses.

"It is proposed to make it an occasion long to be remembered with gratification by all who attend. The program will be published as soon as arranged."

SAY HORSES NOW SCARE AT THE CARS

And Farmer Wants $3000 Damages—
Wagon Stuck and He Was Slightly Injured.

BRINGS SUIT AGAINST I. & C.

Rollo Fisher of Marion county, has brought suit against Charles L. Henry, as receiver of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company for damages in the sum of $3000 says the Shelbyville Republican.

He resides on a farm which is paralleled by the tracks of the interurban company. In order to drive from the pike to his barnyard he has to cross the tracks, which are within a few feet of the barnyard gate.

The complaint alleges that he was crossing the tracks and had the rear part of the wagon almost in the lot, when it caught against the gate. He was compelled to back the wagon and before he could get it clear of the tracks it was struck by a car.

He claims that the wagon was damaged; he was injured and that the horses were frightened and that they are not now safe to drive near a railway.

TOM COLEMAN NOW AN AUTHOR

Writing Series of Articles on "How to Grow Corn" For a Richmond Paper.

RUSH COUNTY IS LAUDED

One of the Prize Counties of the State in High Average of Corn.

The Richmond Palladium makes a big spread of the following announcement:

In announcing that it has arranged with T. A. Coleman, president of the Indiana Corn Growers' Association, for a series of articles on corn, the Palladium feels that it is to be congratulated for having been able to accomplish this for its subscribers among the farmers of Wayne county. The first of Mr. Coleman's articles begins in this issue of the Palladium, and others will follow every Sunday for an indefinite period. Mr. Coleman needs no introduction from the Palladium to its subscribers who are interested in corn raising. Many know him personally and the others know him by reputation through his connection with and good work for the Indiana Corn Growers' Association.

"It might be interesting to note here and now the possibilities for increased wealth for Wayne county's farmers who follow Mr. Coleman's suggestions. For instance, in 1907 the situation of corn in Wayne county was as follows: Number of acres cultivated in corn, 56,129; average yield per acre, 41.99 bushels; total number of bushels of corn, 2,357,301; estimated value of crop at the low price of 40 cents per bushel, $942,920.40. If by following the advice given in Mr. Coleman's first article on seed selection, Wayne county farmers could bring their average yield per acre up to that of Union county, 50.12 bushels, it would mean at the same low rate of 40 cents per bushel, just $224,516 more in their pockets each year.

"Mr. Coleman lives in Rush county and it is interesting to note that the average yield of corn per acre in that county is 49.27 bushels. Wayne county can do equally well if not better and it is for the purpose of helping to bring this about that the Palladium is devoting time and money to securing articles on corn from such recognized experts as Mr. Coleman."

WELL, DON'T KNOW IT IS NOT SO BAD, EH?

If You Are an Ex-Sheriff and Ever
Had to "Cough" Here is a Tonic.

WILL RECLAIM THE OLD FEES

The passage of the sheriff's "in and out" fee bill by the present Legislature after it having been vetoed by Gov. Hanly is no doubt hailed with delight by the sheriffs throughout the State. The bill provides that the sheriffs shall collect twenty-five cents from the county for every prisoner accepted and every prisoner freed. It provides that the "in" and "out" money retained through radical construction of other laws will revert to the sheriffs. Rush county ex-sheriffs will now proceed to gather in a nice little wad of the long green as a result of the passage of the bill.

LOCAL MEN HELP TO ANNEX CUBA

Four Rush County Citizens at Work

FERRY BOATS TO OLD HAVANA

Will Carry Through Passengers From the States, Without Change to New Republic.

Gilbert Meredith, late bookkeeper at the Warfield & Wilson table factory has accepted a clerical position with the Florida East Coast railroad and will soon leave for Miami, where he will be located. Ora Herkless, civil engineer, left for that point today to enter upon his new duties with the enterprise. His brothers, Orval and Sam Herkless are already employed there and are delighted with their new work. In the going away of these gentlemen, Rush county is losing four substantial citizens, and it is to be hoped they will some day return and continue to call this place, home.

Of the enterprise Leslie's Weekly says:

"In linking the mainland of Florida with Key West, H. H. Flagler is at his own expense attempting an unselfish and patriotic public work. When completed, its benefit to the United States and to our Government will become more and more appreciated every year. Few realize what Mr. Flagler's enterprise in all its magnitude really means to the commerce of Cuba and the United States. Within a year the Florida East Coast railway will be completed to Key West, and passengers in Pullmans can go from New York to Key West, there to be loaded on the huge car floats of Mr. Flagler's railroad, and in a few hours find themselves in Havana, ninety miles distant. Vice-President T. R. Parrott, who is in personal charge of the completion of the work, has just announced that trains are now running eighty-four miles southward from Miami, that the total of 124 miles of the extension has been completed, leaving only thirty-two miles more of road to bring the line into Key West, and make connection with the ferry to Havana.

YEUELL TO SPEAK ON SHIPWRECKS

Will Use 150 Electric Pictures Pertinent to the Subject—Program
For Sunday.

EVANGELIST PLANS BUSY DAY

Tomorrow will be a great day in the Yeuell revival at the Christian church. At the Bible School Rally at 9:15 Mr. Yeuell will make a talk to the school illustrated with chemicals.

At 10:30 the evangelist preaches on "The Overloaded Elephant." In the afternoon at 2:30 the meeting for women only will be held when Mr. Yeuell lectures on "The False and the True Woman." Sunday night the evangelist preaches on "The Sleeping Dove."

Tonight Yeuell will give the second one of his popular series of lectures. The subject is "Shipwrecks" and will be illustrated by 150 electric pictures. A silver offering will be expected at the door.

SHE STOOPS TO FRACTURE

Elderly Lady Sustained Injuries to
Two of Her Ribs.

There's no Emanuel movement to this story. Just an old fashioned movement. While doing chores about her home in Gings last Monday, Mrs. Daniel O'Keefe, an aged lady, stooped over to pick up some articles from the floor. She felt a sharp pain which continued to worry her for several days. Yesterday, a doctor made an examination and found Mrs. O'Keefe had fractured two ribs. She is now confined to her bed.

HAS TRICK BEEN PLAYED ON DRYS?

It is Claimed That Vote Cannot be Legally Canvassed on Sunday as Law Requires.

WILL ANOTHER DAY BE SET?

If the Shelby county dries have been tricked, so have the Rush county dries, for the election has likewise been ordered to occur here on Saturday. Of the matter the Shelbyville News says:

"Have the attorneys for the 'drys' been tricked by the attorneys for the 'wets' in the calling of the election for Saturday? No wonder Attorney M. O. Sullivan, with a knowing smile announced that he was satisfied with the day 'selected' when Saturday was announced. The next day is Sunday. The law is mandatory and says: 'The next day after the election the election commissioners shall meet, canvass the vote, and announce the result.' How about this? The commissioners have adjourned, and cannot be called into session again until the first Monday in March.

The next day after the election will be Sunday, and the election board cannot legally meet and declare results upon that day, it is said. What is going to be done about it?"

KID WHITTON WAS READY TO FIGHT IT

Not With an Attorney, But With His Fists—Unusual Scene in Court Room.

CALLED THE OFFICER A LIAR

Concerning the arrest and first hearing of Kid Whitton in Connersville the News says in part:

"This afternoon, while Whitton was in the presence of Judge Hankins, he called Frazier, the officer who arrested him, a liar. The latter resented it and they came together. It looked like a fight for a few seconds, but Chief Barker slid in between the belligerents just at the psychic moment, and put an end to the altercation."

The Courier adds this interesting chapter:

"Whitton told the Courier last night that he believed he had a case against the police for false imprisonment. He insisted that he was not intoxicated. His father, he says, is an attorney associated with James E. Watson of Rushville. The elder Whitton was in court in New Castle in the option injunction case and this Whitton says, is the reason he was not here yesterday. Whitton claimed that the officer assaulted him without provocation and this, he says, will be one of the points urged in his case against the city."

AIR FILLED WITH SONGS AND YELLS

At the Main Street Christian Church
Last Night When Yeuell Spoke on "The Great Voyage."

ESPECIALLY FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Showed Their Appreciation by Attending in Large Numbers—
Asked to Show Spirit.

Imagine the walls of a sacred house of worship ringing with college yells and songs and you have the situation at the Main Street Christian church last night. Evangelist Yeuell asked that the high school students show some of their spirit and after some hesitation—possibly on account of bashfulness—they responded with the old "railroad" yell and the well known Yale University song, "Boola Boola," with words supplied to suit the local high school. The evangelist's sermon on the subject, "The Great Voyage" was especially for the high school students and they attended one hundred strong, showing their appreciation of the special favor shown them. The sermon appealed to the young woman and young man and was in a much happier vein and by far the most interesting one ever delivered by the famous evangelist in this city.

Mr. Yeuell spoke in figurative terms in a short introductory talk before the sermon on the shipwrecks of life. It is possible to make a shipwreck of a Christian life and then there is not much chance for recovery explained the minister. He asked the young people especially that they consider each individual a separate ship on the river of time, upon the sea of life and over the ocean of eternity. And thus is life, said the evangelist.

Yeuell divided his sermon on "The Great Voyage" into several parts, describing the various things to be avoided by young people in the voyage of life in figurative terms. The "fog of doubt" are possibly the worst of the long list, which confronts the younger generation today, said the speaker, and they are a condition of mind through which every young man and woman, who thinks, must pass. The "derelict" in life on earth is one of the evils, that must be overcome. The "pirate" or the wilful wrecker of human life, is another of the forces, which influence the men and women of tomorrow and help to draw them down to the lower level of life. The "rock of temptation" can only be avoided by the passage through life on the "vessel of character" and is, said the evangelist, one of the worst evils that young people of today have to overcome. The "quicksands of evil companionship" likened to the Goodwin sands off the coast of France, is another that the younger generation must avoid and overcome in case the temptation arises. The last and greatest of all evils is the "false light" said Mr. Yeuell, and is the one that the youth is most liable not to overcome. There is the danger of the young man and woman following the example of a human being, when the only true and safe light to follow is that of Jesus Christ.

A large number of people will see Florence Davis in "Under the Greenwood Tree" in the Auditorium at Connersville tonight.

INDIANA SOLONS RESTING TODAY

Another Saturday Vacation Causes Grumbling.

SESSION PROVES DILATORY

Members of the Hoosier Legislature Who Feel the Burden of Responsibility Upon Them Grumble at Continued Delay in Pushing the Important Measures They Have in Hand—Some Committees Forego the Pleasures of a Holiday and Are at Work Today on Bills Which Have Been Submitted to Them.

Indianapolis, Feb. 6.—The house and senate were idle today, having adjourned until Monday afternoon. The enforced idleness is causing much grumbling among members who want to get important bills through.

Some committee meetings were held today, and it is said that the committees are almost up with their work.

The state board of education, the state library and the Indiana public library commission are opposed to the bill introduced Thursday by Senator Fleming which takes the management of the state library out of the hands of the state board of education and places it in the hands of a new commission, which shall also control the Indiana public library commission.

The state officials are making the charge that this bill was introduced at the request of Miss Merica Hoagland, who is in charge of the school for librarians, now being conducted at the Propylaeum in this city. The bill establishes a state librarians' school.

A Split in the Board.

A split in the board of directors of the school has already arisen over the bill, and Meredith Nicholson, president of the board of directors, has resigned. Jacob P. Dunn and H. J. Milligan, two others of the directors, have also resigned, and T. C. Howe, president of Butler college, who is one of the directors, has expressed an intention to resign.

The bill, according to members of the state board of education, was introduced without consulting the state board of education, and the board has adopted resolutions declaring against the establishment of a librarians' school in connection with the state library.

Fishing Bill Passed.

The Crumpacker bill, providing penalties for fishing in the inland lakes of the state with trot lines, was passed without a dissenting vote, the call showing 39 votes for it and none against it.

The Kane bill, providing for a closed season for all fishing in the streams of the state from Feb. 1 to June 15, which was killed in the senate a few days ago, came up again Monday. Senator Kistler, who fought the bill as it stood then, made the motion to call it up for reconsideration.

Since the defeat of the fishing bill Senator Kane has been on the war-path, and this may have had some influence in bringing about the proposed reconsideration of the measure. Several of those who opposed the bill have signified a willingness to support it if Senator Kane will agree to some amendments which they say will not weaken it.

Gravel Road Bond Issues.

The committee on roads reported favorably on Senator Long's bill, which legalizes gravel road bonds issued in counties under an act of 1905. The same committee recommended the postponement of Senator Long's bill providing for the appointment of road supervisor by the township trustee, and recommended the passage of Senator Bowser's bill permitting the placing of hitching posts near church property.

The committee on agriculture reported favorably on Senator Crumpacker's bill which provides that each share of stock in a county agricultural society shall be entitled to one vote in real estate transaction.

Senator Stotsenburg's bill prohibiting the killing of pheasants for a period of six years was reported favorably.

To Cut Down Council.

Senator Cox has introduced a bill to cut down the number of councilmen in Indianapolis to nine and to provide that they shall be selected at large in the city. He provides also for an increase in salary. Senator Mattingly offered a reform bill authorizing notaries public to perform marriage ceremonies. Senator Moore introduced a bill enlarging the powers of the state board of education in making contracts for text-books.

In the senate a bill was passed giving Hammond another superior court judge. Senator Cox's bill to compel merchants to give five days' notice to their creditors of a contemplated sale of their stock, was passed with very slight opposition.

THE DELAWARE LAUNCHED TODAY

First American Dreadnaught Slips Into Sea.

NORTH DAKOTA'S SISTER SHIP

Sharing With the North Dakota the Honor of Being the First American Dreadnaught, the Delaware Was Launched Today at Newport News—Giant Sea Fighter Christened by the Niece of the Governor of Delaware—The Usual Champagne Was Used Despite Protests of Temperance Crusaders.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 6.—Bearing the name of the next to the smallest state of the Union, the Delaware, the largest battleship of the United States, was launched here today. She shares with her sister ship the North Dakota, recently launched at Fort River, Mass., the honor of being the first American Dreadnaught.

Standing sponsor for the Delaware was Miss Anna P. Cahall, a daughter of the state for which the new ship is named. She is a resident of Bridgeville, Del., and a niece of Governor Pennell of Delaware. Assisting Miss Cahall in the task of smashing the bottle of champagne on the bow of the Delaware and naming the huge hull was Miss Hazel of Dover, Del., a niece of Mrs. James Pennell, sister-in-law of the governor.

Despite the agitation of the temperance societies of Delaware to have the state's namesake christened with water, the customary bottle of champagne played its usual sacrificial part in the launching of the Delaware.

State's Leading Men Present.

Governor Pennell, his brother, Judge James Pennell; Delaware's representatives in the national legislature and the members of the state legislature, as well as a large number of prominent citizens of Dover, Wilmington and other places, were present to see the battleship take the water.

When completed the Delaware will be a first class armored battleship of 20,000 tons displacement. Her general dimensions are as follows: Length over all, 518 feet 9 inches; beam, 85 feet 2 inches; depth, 44 feet 6 inches. Her main battery will consist of ten twelve-inch guns mounted in pairs in turrets. She will be propelled by twin screws driven by two four-cylinder triple expansion engines capable of sending her through the water at a 21 knot gait. She will cost almost $4,000,000.

IMPROVEMENT GENERAL

Bradstreet's Review Today is of an Encouraging Nature.

New York, Feb. 6.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: Trade is quiet as a whole, and industrial operations are still below normal in most lines. Conservatism in buying is still marked, and there is also present the feeling of disappointment hitherto noted at the failure of spring trade to open up more rapidly. Some measures of trade volume showed slight recessions in January from December, but the failure record was an encouraging one, and the improvement over the same month a year ago, when business was at a low ebb, is general and marked. Collections are little changed and classed as fair, as a whole.

The disposition in many lines is still to attribute slowness of demand in opening up to fear of tariff revisions, but there is manifest now a disposition to recognize more fully the play of natural conditions and restriction of consumptive requirements proceeding from reduced earning power of the community.

THE "WETS" WIN ONE

Wayne the First County in Indiana to Vote in Favor of Saloons.

Richmond, Ind., Feb. 6.—The thirteenth test of the county option law in Indiana proved to be the first defeat the "drys" have sustained in this state. By a majority of about 1,000 Wayne county voted "wet" Friday. This result was accomplished by the great majority rolled up in the city of Richmond in favor of licensing the saloons. The city majority for license was nearly 2,000. This was greater than the out townships could overcome. The majority in favor of shutting out the saloons ranged close to 1,000 outside of Richmond and Wayne township.

Stephenson Still "Shy."

Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—Both branches of the Wisconsin legislature adjourned Friday afternoon until next Tuesday without having elected a United States senator. The seventh joint ballot showed practically no change from Thursday. United States Senator Stephenson received sixty out of 128 votes, having five fewer than a majority.

Heavy shipments from Argentina and Australia for the week, with only a light movement from America, had a depressing effect on the Chicago wheat market.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Business failures for the week were 286, against 311 last week and 272 in the same week of 1908.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a total of 5,639,458, against 5,669,308 last week.

Three children were burned to death in the destruction by fire of the Seventh Day Adventist's orphanage at Battle Creek, Mich.

Excessive rains in Germany have caused many streams to rise higher than at any time in fifty years, and much loss of life is reported.

The Texas legislature decided adversely the proposition to submit to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment providing for state-wide prohibition.

Dullness of retail trade is somewhat more pronounced than usual at this season, and distribution in wholesale lines continues considerably restricted, says Dun's Review.

Tom Longboat, the Onondaga Indian from Canada, won the New York "Marathon" from the Englishman, Alfred Shrubbs, who collapsed in the twenty-fifth mile, leaving the Indian to finish the race alone.

MORE THAN A SCORE KILLED IN TORNADO

Fierce Storm Sweeps Wide Section of South.

Louisville, Feb. 6.—Death to more than a score of people, losses of hundreds of thousands of dollars in property and the crippling of many telegraph wires resulted between noon and dusk Friday from a series of small cyclones and tornadoes which swept Dixie from the Tennessee line to the Texas Panhandle. The storms were accompanied in most cases by hail, darkness and terrific lightning flashes and sheets of rain.

Most of the towns where the losses of life occurred are off the beaten track, so that news from them came in slowly. Known deaths thus far, however, are: Two at Stuttgart, Ark.; one at Sulphur Springs, Tex.; four at Rolling Fork, Miss.; six at Booth, Miss., and seven at Cullman, Ala. In other towns, such as Ennis and Waxahachie, Tex., and Boscoe, La., many dwellings were said to have been demolished by the force of the wind. Arkansas and upper Louisiana rice-fields were injured to the extent of many thousands of dollars, while the larger cities had rains and darkness illuminated by lightning bolts that made the atmosphere quiver.

SENATE SQUELCHED IT

There Will Be No Anti-Japanese Legislation in Nevada.

Carson, Nev., Feb. 6.—The Nevada senate showed its feeling concerning anti-Japanese legislation, when the Dodge resolution from the assembly asking for a war fleet in the Pacific, which also referred to the Japanese as "a menace to America's peace," came up. The resolution passed the assembly unanimously, and was reported favorably by the committee in the senate, but when it was placed on third reading, Woodbury (Rep.) moved that the measure be tabled. His motion prevailed without a dissenting vote.

IN ALLISON'S MEMORY

Senate Today Offers Tribute to Late Senator From Iowa.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The senate transacted no public business today, its time being devoted to eulogies of the career of the late William Boyd Allison, senator from Iowa, who died Aug. 4, 1908.

An unusual note of feeling ran through the addresses. They had little of the perfunctory nature generally marking the obituary exercises in the senate, as Senator Allison's long service in the upper national house and the qualities of his character commanded the respect of his colleagues. The principal address was made by Senator Dolliver of Iowa.

Sperry Approves Findings.

Gibraltar, Feb. 6.—Rear Admiral Sperry has approved the findings of the court martial which tried Captain Quilgrouh of the battleship Georgia on a charge of intoxication. While the findings were not made public, it is rumored that the officer has been disgraced—that possibly he will be dismissed.

A north country parson thought it absurd that a working class woman should wish to christen her child "Laura Winifred Gwendolyn Genevieve."

"My good woman, what a ridiculously long and fanciful name!" he protested. "Why not choose something simpler—Sarah, for instance? That is my own wife's name."

"Ah, yes, Sarah's all very well for a parson's wife, but I hope my little gal will look a bit higher than that," answered the woman readily.

The astonished parson thereupon performed the ceremony without further comment.—London Telegraph.

PERSONAL POINTS

Indianapolis, Feb. 6.—The habit of passing bills over the veto of Governor Hanly established by the last legislature, has been taken up by a majority of the members this time. Several bills vetoed by Governor Hanly after the adjournment of the session two years ago, have been taken up and passed by a vote that has been almost unanimous. The house took evident pleasure in passing three bills that were vetoed by Hanly. One provides that county clerks shall retain transcript fees instead of turning them into their office. The legislature also passed a bill vetoed by Hanly to permit sheriffs to collect "in-and-out" fees. Both parties are pledged to oppose the fee system, yet a majority of the members were for allowing fees where Governor Hanly offered opposition. The house passed the Springer bill legalizing the assessments made of property of private banks and a measure relating to Lake county. Both were disapproved by Governor Hanly. A bill permitting physicians to practice while their appeal from a decision of the state medical board revoking their license, is pending, came within two votes of being passed over a Hanly veto.

The members of the Democratic State Editorial association decided that it is not up to them to show the legislature how to vote on the bills that have been introduced to repeal the county local option law. A resolution was offered dealing with local option and urging the Democratic legislators to stand by their platform, but it was the opinion of the association that it ought not to take a hand in the adoption of laws. Resolutions were approved congratulating the party on its success in the recent campaign and approving the attitude of Governor Marshall. The resolution contained the statement that it is regrettable that the result of the recent election was clouded by practices that resulted in the defeat of a portion of the Democratic state ticket. In view of the fact that the Republican officials benefited by these alleged practices, the Democratic editors said they owe it to the state to assist in obtaining better election laws. The officers elected are: President, W. S. Chambers of Newcastle; first vice president, Clay W. Metsker, Plymouth; second vice president, S. Paul Poynter, Sullivan; treasurer, Oscar Gravens, Bloomington; secretary, Frank Gwinn, New Albany; executive committee—H. A. Hazen Boonville; George R. Griffin, Spencer; A. N. Crecraft, Franklin; John DePrez, Shelbyville; H. B. Darling, LaPorte; D. C. Adams, Columbia City; E. E. Cox, Hartford City; J. E. Babcock, Rensselaer; R. P. Carpenter, Noblesville; A. D. Moffett, Elwood; W. B. Whitlock, Huntington; Charles Arnold, Greencastle, and L. M. O'Bannon, Corydon.

The senate committee on judiciary A, after spending the better part of yesterday afternoon hearing arguments on the various bills for an employers' liability act, agreed that they would try to combine the pending bills early next week with a view to agreeing upon a measure that would be fair to the various interests which have done battle before the committee. The committee at the same meeting decided to report in favor of the passage of the Bland bill pertaining to railroad fires, but will amend it by submitting practically a new bill. The bill will provide for the payment of damages in case railroad companies start fires, but will not as reported by the committee be as broad as its author proposed.

Senator E. E. Moore, chairman of the senate committee on education, lined up the opposing sides in the Indiana schoolbook controversy at the public hearing in the senate chamber last night and compelled both factions to conduct their arguments according to Hoyle. Each speaker was given ten minutes in which to present his side of the argument. At the conclusion of the meeting Senator Moore announced that the committee will probably get together today and formulate a report. The Cox bill was the only measure taken up. Robert J. Aley, newly elected superintendent of public instruction, addressed the committee in favor of the present system of book selection.

John E. Lamb of Terre Haute, who was a candidate before the recent Democratic caucus for United States senator, was here in behalf of a bill introduced by Representative Poor of Terre Haute, asking for an appropriation of $10,000 to build a monument in honor of the late Senator Daniel Voorhees. The bill was prepared by Mr. Lamb, who was one of Senator Voorhees' close friends.

OFFICERS VISIT GILDED PALACES

But Only Find Old Paraphernalia
Which They Properly Confiscate in Dry Haul.

NO GAMBLING WAS FOUND

City Marshal Price, accompanied by Policeman Pea and deputy William Redman, made the rounds of various saloons this afternoon where it was rumored that gambling was in progress, but in each instance the raid proved a "dry haul." At one or two places, it is understood, old paraphernalia was found and confiscated by the officers. No arrests were made.

The county option movement is on the "Wayne."

Geographically, the location of the Ananias club quarters is ideal: they can see every man that enters and comes out of the three national banks here.

Corn cobs and brown sugar did not take the usual spring jump on account of the stringent pure food restrictions. But as to benzoate of soda—oh, that's different.

The voting of Wayne county wet and the order to proceed with the brick street here, sets worse with some people than the high price of eggs.

When those students gave the yell in church last night, bet the Devil gave a louder yell—from pain.

To appear graceful, those Rushville girls afflicted with the Skaters Walk should wear divided skirts—and smoked glasses.

Policeman Pea will now make the run with the fire department. He will put his bloodhounds on the trail any time the fire chief cries out "Tis false!"

THEIR FIRST LOVE.

Greensburg News: A bill introduced in the Senate, yesterday, S. B. 278, makes separate circuits of Bartholomew and Shelby counties and a joint circuit of Rush and Decatur counties. That suits us for we are ready to return to our first love, old Rush, and get more days of court.

New York Fashion Letter

BY CATHERINE MANN-PAYZANT.

With the arrival of February, one has the time to look after their wardrobe, and we are sure to find that the wear and tear of the balls, theaters, parties, receptions, dinners and luncheons have made serious inroads into our stock of pretty clothes. There is still almost a month before Lent will let us off from social duties and it behooves us to look about us for those gowns that will carry us through the winter.

We first look into our business or street costume frayed out, in all probability will be the verdict, faded perhaps from the last storm we were caught in.

It is rather late to buy a new heavy coat suit, so we will choose a "whole piece" dress and one of the long coats with a removable lining, which means its use in the summer as an automobile coat, and the dress may be worn later with the addition of a little light wrap or a lace neck piece.

Let us choose one of the new striped serges in two tones of grey—a taupe and a grey that is almost a brown. The stripes are about an inch wide and alternate in a diagonal weave. The dress has a narrow panel down the front and back, topped by a little yoke facing of the same width. Two tuck-plaits on each shoulder would seem to run down into those of the skirt, but a high belt passes in Empire style from the panels around the waist. The sides of the skirt are circular in cut and the sleeves also consist of tucks of the same width as those over the shoulder. A cream net guimpe is worn or one in brown may be substituted. The coat, as is the case with most coats worn over the whole dresses is long, some of them are three-quarter, some seven-eighths, some full length. It would have a panel back and front as in the skirt and a rather wide shawl collar. Pockets and cuffs might reverse the stripe with good effect. Fancy buttons should complete the costume. Brown kid shoes and gloves and brown furs or those in grey should be worn.

Every evening gown that we possess is in all likelihood in its worst state. A new evening gown—but there is that dress of last season that is worn but very little. It was made full with flounces. We will take it apart and that handy little seamstress will be able to make it into something presentable, I am sure. We will get a few yards of some new silk. The old material is laid in shallow plaits on each shoulder which pass into the fulness of the bust after a little. A panel is laid in the front and at the sides. Just under the bust the fulness of a drapery is held into the figure by a narrow girdle, ornamented in the middle by a wide and fancy buckle and from each side hangs a long end. In this way, the fact that the skirt length beneath at the waist line is out of date is cleverly hidden. The skirt, of course, should have as much of its fulness removed as possible and if will bear it, be recut. The close fitting sleeve may be of silk net tucked and embroidered and coming only to the elbow, and inside of the V opening at the neck is a double cascade of the net. The silk for the girdle and sash ends and the net are the new materials needed. If the gown should happen to be pink it might be covered with a thin mauve veiling, or a blue may have a new peculiar shade of green and black silk for girdle. A whole black gown would be pretty with gold cord ornaments and tassels.

But there is that big matinee party coming off next week and we have only the green velvet that we wore to the reception. Again our little seamstress will give invaluable aid. We will change it into a princess dress which is always becoming, and the top we will drape with soft folds from the shoulders. The outer draping of the gown is in one piece, laid in folds on the right shoulder and brought down under the left arm, where the folds are caught together under the ornamental buckle of old silver. Below the waist line the gown is closed with large buttons covered with the dress material or of like material to the buckle, the edges below the buttons being invisibly closed. The skirt falls from the shoulders and over the left is laid in soft folds to correspond with those on the right side. The yoke is of cream lace and the lower part of the mousquetaire sleeve. White gloves will be worn and a band of green velvet with silver ornaments could be worn in the hair.

We really need a dainty little home frock that is not too elaborate, yet may be worn when a few friends come for dinner or the evening game of cards. The skirt is cut in two pieces, back and front, opening at the sides over a silk panel of the same shade as the dress material, which in this case is a pretty olive green that has been over it that looks like a white front on a leaf. Each side of the opening may be outlined with tiny buttons or bands of embroidery of lace. The waist is of the surplice style and is most effective with the guimpe of lace or tucked material contrasting with the over-blouse. The edges of the surplice and oversleeves may be trimmed with a different material or with the same trimming as is on the skirt. The under sleeves are of the material in the yoke and should come to a little below the elbow, and the neck finish to the yoke should be low with a narrow ruche and strings of pearls or silver beads. The sash that forms a part of the girdle will tie on the left side where the right surplice front overlaps. White stockings and suede shoes the same color as the gown should be worn.

A new extra waist? A blouse that will be very useful is of crepe de chine made with back and front portions in over-blouse style mounted on French lining, on which the yoke is faced, the lining being cut out from beneath, and the sleeves are inserted in it. The full sleeve can be finished with narrow bands at elbow length, or they may be used over the tight sleeves of the thin material, which are shaped by the linings. The front and back of the waist are not joined under the arm in a seam, but the free edges continue to the waistline, the portion of the lining under the arm being faced with the same material as the yoke and the thin sleeves.

ought to put dynamite under the whole county, and blame me if I would pull the string to touch'er off."
And so it goes! That fellow evidently did not know he was doing the cause more harm than good by such fanatical utterances. On the other hand, one can hear declarations equally as "bloody" from the other side of the question.

In Richmond, both sides put up a fight that was clean and above board. It was the first place where a county option was on that a newspaper championed the cause of the wets, and it was the first place that they came out victorious in thirteen elections. James Bennett Gordon, the able editor of the Richmond Item, fought the county optionists and to him belongs the lion's share of the victory from one standpoint and the abusive fire from the other.

COWLING TO PREACH SUNDAY

Splendid Spirit Has Been Manifested
Throughout the Meetings—
Good Work Done.

The people of Rushville and vicinity are enjoying a rare treat in music during these revival services at the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Ramsay is a wonderful singer and chorus leader. He loves to sing, and has the happy faculty of getting others to sing. The singers of this city who have had the opportunity to hear Mr. Ramsay sing and who have been in the chorus under his leadership pronounce him a wonder. People come early and wait and linger at the close of the service to listen to the splendid music. Mr. Ramsay's solos are appropriate and are sung with such expression that the auditors are simply charmed and held spellbound by his music. Tomorrow Mr. Ramsay will sing one or two solos at both the morning and evening services.

At the evening service Rev. Cowling will preach on the "Judgment Seat of Christ." This promises to be a very fine service and a large attendance is anticipated. Throughout the meetings there has been a fine spirit manifested and the church as a whole is being revived and put into shape for splendid work for the church and the city. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services.

LOCAL LAWYERS FAVOR MEASURE

Of Putting Rush County Back Into the Old Circuit With Decatur County.

JUDGE SPARKS ON THE BENCH

He Would be Named to Officiate Until
He Would be Again Elected in 1910.

Anent the proposed change of the judicial district, throwing Rush county into a circuit with Decatur county instead of with Shelby, all of which is viewed with favor by local members of the bar, the Shelbyville News says:

A bill was introduced in the Senate Wednesday defining the Sixteenth and Ninth judicial circuits and creating and defining the Sixty-second judicial circuit, fixing their times for holding court; prescribing what judges and prosecuting attorneys shall serve therein and providing for the appointment and election of judges and prosecuting attorneys.

Under the provisions of this bill Bartholomew county will be made the Ninth judicial circuit, Rush and Decatur counties the Sixteenth and Shelby county the Sixty-second.

Court in this county will, if the bill becomes a law, be held four times a year, beginning on the first Monday in February, the fourth Monday in April, the first Monday in September, and the third Monday in November, each term continuing as long as business shall require.

Under the proposed law an emergency clause is introduced. The judge and prosecutor would be appointed by Gov. Marshall as soon as the laws were published. Judge Sparks, it is fair to presume, would be named judge of Rush and Decatur counties and Judge Hucker continue in the service for Bartholomew.

Shelby county would have its Judge selected by the Governor until the election in 1910, when the voters could express their choice. The law proposes that the judge shall serve six years and the prosecutor two.

After the bill was introduced in the Senate it was referred to the judiciary committee and will be taken in the regular way.

The business of the court here is far behind and there are now in the neighborhood of two hundred cases on the docket. The attorneys realize that to make this county a judicial circuit by itself would mean that litigation would be advanced and there would be some assurance of cases being heard within a reasonable time after they were filed.

This county being Democratic, would insure the election of both a Democratic judge and prosecutor, and that phase of the matter is decidedly interesting. There is plenty of available timber here for both positions and the contest would add to the deep interest of the political situation.

It is quite likely that the local bar will hold a meeting soon and appoint a committee to go to Indianapolis to lobby for the passage of the bill.

At the Vaudeville tonight a sensational film will be shown called, "Paris at the Height of 2600 Feet." Another story is "The Jealous Fisherman." Both are said to be good. Miss Clara Gregg will sing the illustrated song, "My Honeymoon." The Vaudeville management say they want to impress upon their patrons that they change their program every night. Good crowds saw the Saturday matinees today.

The Grand theater will repeat last night's bill which was seen and enjoyed by large crowds at every show.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Bilioussness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE CONSPIRATORS OUTWITTED. SENATOR LANGDON'S dinner had well won popularity in Washington. Invitations to them were rarely answered by the sending of "regrets." He had brought his old Mississippi cook from the plantation, whose southern dishes had caused the secretary of state himself to make the senator an offer for the chef's services. "No use bidding for old General Washington," said the Hope Georgia Langdon, girlish and vivacious.

senator on that notable occasion. "He wouldn't leave my kitchen, sir, even to accept the presidency itself. Why, I couldn't even discharge him if I wanted to. I tried to let him go once, sir, and the old general made me feel so ashamed of myself that I actually cried, sir."

Peabody and Stevens were the dinner guests tonight, as they were to confer afterward with Langdon and settle on the action of the naval affairs committee regarding the naval base. The three, being a majority, could control the action of the committee.

Senator Peabody had finally postponed leaving for Philadelphia until the midnight train in order to be present, he assured Langdon as the trio entered the library. The girls, Norton and Randolph, were left to oversee preparations for the prominent Washingtonians invited to attend the musicale to be given later in the evening.

Carolina and Hope Georgia were in distinctly different moods—the elder, vivacious, elated over the bright outlook for her future; the younger, cast down and wearing a worried expression. Norton and Randolph in jubilant spirit tried to cheer her and, failing, resorted to taunts about some imaginary love affair.

The courage of the afternoon, which had enabled her to speak to Haines as she had, was gone; girlish fears now swept over her as to the outcome of the evening. Haines had not come! Was he really guilty and had promised to come merely to get rid of her? Why was he late? If he did come, would she be able to have her father see him, as she had promised? If she failed, and she might, she would never see this young man again.

"If I looked as unhappy as you, Hope, I'd go to bed and not discourage our guests as they arrive," Carolina suggested. "Our floral decorations alone for tonight cost $700, and the musical program cost over $3,000. The most fashionable folks in Washington coming—what more could you want, Hope? Isn't it perfectly glorious? Why?"

"Mr. Haines is below, asking to see Senator Langdon," announced a servant, entering.

"Oh, I knew he'd come! I knew it! I knew it!" cried Hope Georgia in pure ecstasy, clapping her hands.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter forth every reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, therefore, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

The three plotters turned on the girl in amazement; then they stared at each other.

"Mr. Haines?" ejaculated Carolina.

"Haines!" exclaimed Randolph, hurriedly leaving the room.

"Haines!" sneered Norton. "We can take care of him. The senator won't see him."

Carolina caught the suggestion.

"Tell Mr. Haines that Senator Langdon regrets that he cannot possibly receive him," she directed.

"Carolina!"

There was a ring of protest and pain in Hope Georgia's voice as she darted out of the door after the servant.

"What's the matter with that girl?" asked Norton, trying to be calm.

Carolina shook her head.

"I don't know. She's queer today. I believe she imagines herself in love with Mr. Haines."

"Aren't you afraid she'll make trouble?"

The other sister laughed confidently.

"Little Hope make trouble? Of course not. If she does, we can always frighten her into obedience."

The door reopened and Hope entered, followed by Bud Haines. The girl's head was high; her cheeks were red; her eyes glittered ominously.

"I brought him back, Carolina," she said coolly. "Father will want to see him. I know there has been some mistake."

"Yes," supplemented Bud, "there has been a decided mistake, and I must refuse to accept the word that came to me from Senator Langdon."

Carolina Langdon drew herself up in her most dignified manner.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Haines, but you must accept it," she said.

"Exactly," seconded Norton. "Senator Langdon entirely declines to receive you."

"I don't trust anything you say, Congressman Norton, and I may say also that I recognize no right of yours to interfere in any affair between me and the Langdon family."

"Perhaps I can explain my right," Mr. Haines, Norton said coolly, stepping beside Carolina. "I have just had the pleasure of announcing to Miss Hope Georgia Langdon my engagement to Miss Carolina Langdon."

Haines, entirely unprepared for such a denouement, shot a searching glance at Carolina. She bowed her head in affirmation.

"So that's why you tried to ruin me!" he cried. "You're both from the same mold," turning from Carolina Langdon to Congressman Norton, then back to the girl.

They stood facing each other when Randolph Langdon returned. At sight of Bud Haines he started, stopped short a second, then came forward quickly.

"Mr. Haines, my father has declared that he will not see you, and either you leave this house at once or I shall call the servants."

Bud looked at young Langdon contemptuously.

"Yes, I think you would need some help," he sneered, feeling in his veins the rush of red blood, the determination in his heart that had a few years back carried him through eighty yards of struggling Yale football players to a touchdown.

The senator's son drew back his arm, but the alert, confident look of the New Yorker restrained him.

"Mr. Haines, in the south gentlemen do not make scenes of violence before ladies."

The cold rebuke of Carolina cut into the silence.

Haines stood in perplexity. He did not know what to do or how to get to the senator. It was Hope who came to his rescue.

"I'll tell father you are here. I'll make him come," Mr. Haines. He shall see you."

With the air of a defiant little princess she started for the door.

"Hope, I forbid you doing any such thing," exclaimed her older sister, but the younger girl paid no attention. Randolph caught her arm.

"You shall not, Hope," he cried. Hope Georgia struggled and pulled her arm free.

"I reckon I just got to do what seems right to me, Randolph," she exclaimed. "I reckon I've grown up to-night, and I tell you—I tell all of you"—she whirled and faced them—"there's something wrong here, and father is going to see Mr. Haines to-night, and they are going to settle it."

Norton alone was equal to the situation, temporarily at least.

"I'll be fair with you, Hope," he said reassuringly, and she stopped in her flight to the hall door. "I'll take Carolina and Randolph in to see the senator, and we'll tell him Mr. Haines is here. Perhaps we had better tell the senator," Norton suggested, beckoning to Carolina and her brother. "Let Mr. Haines wait here, and we will make the situation clear to the senator."

"You'd better make it very clear," exclaimed the younger girl, "for I'm going to stay here with Mr. Haines until he has seen father."

The guilty trio, fearful of this new and unexplainable activity of Hope

"I brought him back. Father will want to see him," said Hope.

Georgia, slowly departed in search of Senator Langdon to make a last desperate attempt to prevent him from meeting this pestilential secretary that was—and might be again.

When the door closed after them Hope came down to the table where Bud Haines was standing.

"Won't you sit down, Mr. Haines?" she said. "I'll try to entertain you until father comes," she said weakly, realizing that again she was alone with the man she loved.

A CAREFUL JUDGE.

The Way the Law is Administered in Merrie England.

A friend of mine, wishing to make a present of a ring to an acquaintance who was on the eve of being married, bought the article and handed it to the jeweler, with instructions to have a suitable inscription engraved upon it, making a stipulation that it should be finished and returned by a certain date, otherwise it would be useless. Months elapsed before the ring was delivered. It was sent back to the jeweler. The tradesman took out a summons, and my friend had to come back to town and sit in a stuffy court all day without the case being called. Next morning he bribed the usher to let him know when the case was called. He was sent for at luncheon and sat till a quarter past 4 listening to anything but edifying matters which had to be disposed of first. By this time the old gentleman on the bench was fast asleep. The jeweler's case was called, and my friend's solicitor stated the defense. At its close the legal functionary slowly disentangled himself from the embrace of Morpheus, opened one eye, grunted, "Verdict for plaintiff," and lumbered heavily out of court. My friend was furious and addressed the judge in terms the reverse of polite. The usher endeavored to pacify him and eventually led him out of court, and after pocketing another half sovereign he remarked: "Yes, sir; it's very 'ard, I know. But, you know, sir, he allers gives a verdict for the plaintiff after 4 o'clock!"—London Strand Magazine.

FOREST FROM SEEDS.

Aged Man Starts Nursery Near Falls Church, Va.

PLANTED IN AN ORCHARD.

Millions of Seeds Were Gathered From Trees in Washington—Colorado Enthusiast Hopes to Replace Timber. Explains His Purpose in Starting Seedling Farm.

With seeds of forest trees estimated to number not less than 1,250,000 planted on a small strip of land about two miles directly south of Falls Church, Va., Sidney A. Gaylor of Washington, an experienced nurseryman, has begun in a practical way the cultivation of seedlings, with which he hopes to replace aged or fallen timber or create additional tracts of timber land in the neighborhood of Washington. And a surprising fact of this planting near Falls Church is that every one of the seeds placed there was gathered by Mr. Gaylor from trees in the city of Washington or just over the District line.

Mr. Gaylor, in addition to being an experienced nurseryman and an enthusiast on trees, especially of the shade or forest variety, describes himself as "a newspaper correspondent who has written up the agricultural advantages and opportunities of many of the fertile river valleys of Colorado, my home." He gives his age as seventy-one years and says that practically all his time for the past thirty-six years has been devoted to affairs strictly agricultural, both theoretical and practical.

The major part of his life, so he told a Washington Star reporter, has been spent in Kansas and Colorado, where he studied, experimented and dealt at times in a practical manner in forestry trees. At one time he planted timber claims and at other times dug mere seedlings from the forests of Colorado, brought them to the highest possible condition of tree life through cultivation and care and then disposed of them, in several instances "treeling," as he described it, public parks in Colorado cities.

"What was my object in planting those seeds out near Falls Church? Just simply because I believe in reforestation; that's all. I think it is the duty of everybody to become interested in this subject, and everybody should do something practical toward placing the timber life of this country in the same condition it was in a hundred years ago.

"Rather than for pecuniary gain I gathered those seeds and planted them right here near the capital of the nation with the hope that other people would become interested and do the same thing until we should have no dearth of trees anywhere. And just to show how easily it can be accomplished I gathered nearly all of my seeds here in the thickly settled portions of Washington."

"How did you become interested in trees?" was asked.

"It may seem strange, but I'll tell you. When I was a boy about eleven or twelve years old I happened to be reading my Bible and ran across the passage, 'Behold the fig tree and all the other trees.' That made a lasting impression upon me, and from that day to this my love for the tree and its cultivation has never ceased. Then as time went on and the big forests I used to see in my boyhood out west disappeared I felt as though there was something strangely missing, and then I began to think again, hard, and suddenly it all dawned on me—reforestation! We needed to replace the things which were gone."

Mr. Gaylor spoke of President Roosevelt's interest in forestry and said:

"His administration has agitated the country from center to circumference, and possibly one of the greatest things he has done, in my humble opinion, is the calling of the recent meeting of governors and the conservation deliberations, in particular to forestry."

"Have you called on the president at all?"

"No, I have not. But here is a letter of introduction to him given me by the governor of Colorado when I came here to Washington last May. You see," continued Mr. Gaylor, "it was my original intention to go to South America for the purpose of studying and writing on the agricultural and forest conditions of the republics down there, but I had to give it up on account of my age and health. I didn't realize that years were telling on me until I reached Washington. And then it was I found out that I'd have to forego the tropical trip. My letter to the president was to be presented before I left as one probably interested in the things which attracted me there."

"I liked the city very well. You see, I had never seen the capital of the nation before, so I stayed. After I'd been here a month or more the idea occurred to me to take advantage of the many seeds from the trees here going to waste and show in a practical way what could be accomplished with them."

"How and where did you gather the seeds?"

"Why, when they began dropping I just went out with a broom and a law swept them up, brought them here, cleaned them and put them away until I was ready to plant them. I gathered forty-eight sacks of about one and a half bushels each, and twenty-five of these sacks I planted. The others are here now for the spring or next fall."

"I gathered the acorns for white and chestnut oak at Arlington, the Linden seeds came from along Massachusetts avenue, principally between Eighteenth

THE CHYSANTHEMUM.

Japanese Legend of the Origin of the Many Petaled Flower.

The Japanese have an interesting legend in connection with the origin of the chrysanthemum. In a garden bathed in the soft moonlight a young girl plucked a flower and commenced to strip the petals to see if her fiance loved her truly. Of a sudden a little god appeared before her and assured her that her fiance loved her passionately. Your husband will live, he added, as many years as the flower which I will let you choose has petals. With these words he disappeared. The young girl hastened to search the garden for a flower which should have an abundance of petals, but each one appeared to promise but a brief future for her beloved.

At length she picked up a Persian carnation, and, with the aid of a gold pin taken from her hair, she separated each of the petals of the flower so as to increase the number of folioles and of the number of years accorded by the god to her fiance. Soon under her deft fingers one, two, three hundred petals, thin, pliant and beautifully curved, had been evolved, and the young girl cried for joy to think of the happy future which her husband had assured her fiance. So, runs the legend, was the chrysanthemum created one moonlight night in a Japanese garden where silvery brooks murmured softly as they ran beneath the little bamboo bridges.—London Globe.

It was a mean trick, but, then, that is the kind that's usually successful.

"That dog," said the owner, "will bring me anything I send him for, and I am willing to bet on it."

Straightway a bet was arranged, and then the manager of the billiard hall suggested that he would like to have the pool table brought to him.

"Certainly," answered the owner of the dog, and he pointed to the table and said, "Fetch it!"

The dog ran around it once or twice and then grabbed a pocket and tore it off.

"Hold on!" cried the billiard man. "He'll ruin the table."

"Of course," answered the owner of the dog, "but if you give him time he'll get it all over here. You didn't suppose he could bring it in one trip, did you?"

But the billiard man paid the bet.

MYSTERIOUS INFORMATION

From Some Source Which the Speaker Could Not Reveal, the Word Has Come That California is Treading Upon Very Dangerous Ground—in View of Complications Thus Hinted at the Legislature Has Decided to Postpone for a Time Further Action on Its Bill to Segregate Japanese School Children.

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 6.—Speaker Philip A. Stanton took the floor in the legislative session and secured, by a strong personal appeal, unanimous consent of the assembly to postpone further action on the Japanese school segregation bill until next Wednesday. He declared he had information which he could not reveal, that proved the assembly was treading upon dangerous ground in passing the anti-Japanese bill.

At the conclusion of the speaker's address, Grove L. Johnson, author of the measure, asked that the matter of re-consideration of Thursday's vote be put over until Wednesday, and his motion carried without dissent.

The governor sent a special message to the house raising the point of the bill's constitutionality, and this was the subject of a long debate, during which it was suggested by leaders on both sides that the measure be referred to the committee on judiciary and submitted to the attorney general for an opinion as to its legality.

A. M. Drew of Fresno, author of the anti-alien land bill, which was defeated on Wednesday, said there was no doubt about the constitutionality of the bill, but the point was that there was no need of it. He said the various municipalities were having no trouble with Japanese in the schools. Less than 1 per cent of them were of school age, and they did not object to attending whatever schools they were assigned to. He would vote for re-consideration because he did not wish to stir up trouble for the president and his cabinet and thereby interfere with treaty negotiations with Japan.

J. P. Transue discussed the governor's message in his speech favoring reconsideration and defeat of the bill. He quoted those portions of the document referring to Japan's claim that the measure was in violation of her treaty rights, and urged that the assembly admit it made a mistake when it passed the bill.

Speaker Stanton took the floor and said: "Regardless of the merits of this bill, I believe it should at least be given reconsideration. We are treading upon very dangerous ground, and I have information, although my lips are sealed, that leads me to make this appeal for postponement. Let it go over until Wednesday, at which time it is probable the governor will be in a position to explain more fully the reasons for the federal government's request for delay."

Mr. Johnson then said that, out of respect for the speaker and because of his faith in him, he would move to postpone until Wednesday. The motion was carried unanimously.

ADJOURNMENT NEAR

Mine Workers' Convention, After Strenuous Session, May Close Today.

Indianapolis, Feb. 6.—It is expected that the convention of the United Mine Workers of America will close late this afternoon. The delegates are tired and anxious to get home. The most important business of Friday was the announcement of the election of a vice president and a secretary-treasurer. E. S. McCullough of Bay City, Mich., is the new vice president. He received 1,462 votes, while John T. Dempsey of Pennsylvania, received 1,110.

The new secretary-treasurer is Edwin Perry of Oskaloosa, Ia., who received 1,312 votes. John Fahy of Pennsylvania received 1,071 votes and Joseph Pope of Illinois, 185 votes.

Under government ownership, Man itoba's telephone system shows a surplus of $250,000 for the first year.

DAYTON'S SHAME GROWS

Another Young Woman Cruelly Murdered in Ohio Town.

Dayton, O., Feb. 6.—Another murder mystery was added to the long list which already shames this city, when the body of a young woman was dragged out of a cistern in the rear of a vacant house. Her brother has identified her as Lizzie Fulhart, eighteen years old, of Vandalia, Ohio. She had always borne a spotless reputation. She came to this city on Tuesday, Dec. 29, to look for employment and was staying with her aunt, Mrs. Samuel Deeters.

The face shows bruises and other evidences of violence are plainly visible. A burlap bag enshrouded the upper portion of the body. The girl left her aunt's home in the morning in her search for work and was expected to return at noon, and the fact that she failed to do so indicated that the crime must have been committed in the broad light of day, the girl having been enticed into the vacant house and there murdered. If this murder occurred on the 29th of December, it followed that of Mary Forschner only about a week, and the police now fear that both crimes were the work of the same man.

POSTPONED ACTION ON VETO MESSAGE

House Treats Lightly Return of Census Bill.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Private claimants by the score had their innings in the house of representatives, the whole session being given over under a special order to their consideration.

The president's message vetoing the census bill was read just before adjournment. It reached the house shortly after noon, but its reading was held up for fear that discussion of it might jeopardize the passage of a number of private bills which were entitled to consideration under special order.

The references of the president to a division of the spoils "without a fight by the professional politicians on both sides," provoked general laughter. After providing for a reprint of the census bill as it passed the house, the house adjourned, thus postponing action on the message.

The president returned without his approval the bill providing for the taking of the next census, because of the provision prescribing that appointments shall be made on the basis of non-competitive examinations instead of through the civil service commission. As passed by congress the bill permitted members and senators to designate persons for positions after they had undergone a simple examination. Incidentally the president referred to the provision authorizing the printing of census reports by private concerns, and laid stress on the point that where work was so allotted the eight-hour law should be "applied in effective fashion." Outside of those matters the president said that on the whole the bill was satisfactory to him.

The senate concluded consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, carrying an aggregate of about eleven and a half millions of dollars. A conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was agreed to. It appropriates $12,000 for the "purchase, care and maintenance of automobiles for the president," and $150,000 to enable the secretary of agriculture to continue to combat the foot and mouth disease in horses and cattle.

TO TOUR COUNTRY

President Elliot of Harvard to Start on Remarkable Journey Tomorrow.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 6.—President Charles W. Elliot of Harvard university, who will retire from his office in May, will begin tomorrow a tour of the eastern and southern sections of the United States. Considering the length of the tour and the frequency of the stops, it will be one of the most remarkable journeys ever undertaken by a man of Dr. Elliot's age. The venerable president of Harvard will be seventy-five years old in March.

President Elliot's trip will extend as far as Texas. He will make many stops on the way to that state, visiting universities and colleges and acting as guest of honor at gatherings of Harvard men. His return journey will be marked by similar breaks. He is due back in Cambridge on April 3.

An Important Ruling.

Indianapolis, Feb. 6.—Judge Pritchard ruled in favor of the state in the most vital question which has arisen during the Marshall trial thus far, the court holding that the state had established a prima facie case of conspiracy between Mr. Marshall and Brunaugh to defraud the city. The ruling is an important victory for the state, as it will enable the state to introduce a wide range of testimony to show the alleged conspiracy.

Now Up to Congress.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The secretary of state has transmitted to the house the certificates of the electoral votes for the various votes in the recent presidential election. They were referred to the house committee on election of president and vice president.

LAUGH AND LIVE LONG.

Recipe of Octogenarian Who Expects to Live to be 104.

Francis Brandeweide of Alton, Mo., the oldest officeholder in St. Louis and now eighty-three years old, believes he has solved the problem of how to live to be 104. He would laugh himself there. Here is the recipe of this octogenarian and the rule he practices:

Laugh all you can, get hold of all the funny stories you can and think of them, chew tobacco, drink a little beer each day and always get up from the table hungry.

One year ago, while clerk of the city court, he became ill, and his family despaired of his getting well. Brandeweide asked the physician to call his friends in and tell any good stories they might know. He also demanded that they allow him to have his plug of tobacco close at hand and that he be allowed to drink a bottle of beer now and then. In spite of the protests of the physicians, the order was followed, and Brandeweide began to mend.

JUDGESHIP MIGHT GO TO CHARLEY HACK

Rush County Willingly Speaks a
Good Word For the Retiring Prosecuting Attorney.

HAS EXCELLENT RECORD HERE

With the talk of Shelby county having a separate circuit and Rush county going back with old Decatur in a circuit, it has given rise to much political discussion and the booming of candidates over night. Among the most prominently mentioned candidates for the judgeship in Shelby county is Charles Hack, the retiring prosecuting attorney of this district.

It would be unfair for the people of Rush county to let the matter go without saying a word or two of commendation, when it is really due to Mr. Hack. Although a Democratic official—and it is not usually the policy of Republican papers to blow their horns for them, and to do it of their own volition—but it must be said in all fairness to Mr. Hack that he made one of the best records of any official that ever handled the office. He was an earnest worker, even at times when a case looked hopeless; he would go out of his way and spend many hours on a case that the cause of justice might be properly served. Mr. Hack proved himself to be a good, clean, upright, capable and conscientious official, far above taking cognizance of petty matters and he went out of the office with a legion of friends in Rush county. Such men are few.

BIG GUNS OF THE RAILROAD HERE

Looking Into Proposed Change For the Lake Erie Railroad—May be Made.

PRESENT SCHEDULE IS BAD

Both New Castle and Rushville Injured and People Along the Way Are Complaining.

Four officials of the L. E. & W. and Big Four were in New Castle a short time Thursday afternoon, says the New Castle Tribune, going from here to Rushville on The Only Way.

In the party were General Passenger agent Hilleary, Supt. O'Brien and T. P. A. Hicks of the Lake Erie, and Supt. Kennedy of the Big Four. These officials were after information as to the desires of the people south of Dunreith, regarding train service. There has been a great deal of complaint over the delay of mails, and the uncertainty of trains, southbound the "schedule" being frequently fractured. The train leaves New Castle anywhere from occasionally on time to more often three and four hours late.

The company is not disposed to consider two trains a day in each direction. To accommodate people living south of Dunreith, who wish to go to Rushville and return the same day, is the main question. To do this it is probable that headquarters will be changed for the crew of this train from Rushville to New Castle. A suggested schedule makes the train leave New Castle at 7:15 a. m., and arrive here, returning at 11:40 a. m. This will give Mays and Sexton two and one-half to three hours in Rushville and a connection from and to trains north of New Castle.

Should such change be made it is probable that it will be done by March.

Will you please investigate and take steps to correct it" to which she received a note in reply, saying: "I don't understand exactly what Charles has been doing, but I have wholoped him tonight and you can wholop him tomorrow, and that ought to help some."
